Market Review

- The U.S. was the worst performing major equity market in February with AI concerns adding volatility. Towards month-end, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled against Trump's April 2025 reciprocal tariffs. Small-cap names outperformed, reflecting a rotation away from concentrated mega-cap leadership.
- The U.S. technology sector underperformed with Nasdaq-100 returning -2.26% as investors were concerned about the monetization of AI capital expenditure, and the potential for AI tools to significantly disrupt the software sector in particular.
